

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image reproduction apparatus includes a flash memory which adds recording time information to an image and records the image, and a control unit which 5 classifies images in the memory on the basis of the added time information, limits the number of classified images for each date to one, and causes a display unit to display a calendar image as a list of images.